AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF SANTA CLAUS

"Here I am again—Santa Claus! Do you know my story?

"Three hundred years after the birth of Christ, I was born to very wealthy parents in Patras, a city in Asia Minor. My name was Nicholas. When my parents died, I began giving their money away secretly. One of the first gifts was a bag of gold, dropped down the chimney of a poor man who had three daughters. He couldn't marry them off as he had no dowries. I began dropping bags of gold down other chimneys for poor children. In time I became Bishop of Myra.

"On a certain December the sixth, people thought I died! In memory of me, they began presenting gifts to their children. I didn't die— I became a good saint—Saint Nicholaus.

"In 1613, my figure was carved on the prow of a Dutch ship that brought settlers to New Amsterdam

CHRISTMAS SHOPPER

Thanksgiving Day has hardly passed
When I began to shop
To help the stores and personnel
Avoid exhaustion's flop.

Each night I pondered very late
What had to be exchanged,
I wrote my cards, to help the post,
My mailing gifts arranged.

Now Christmas Eve has come, I grieve
I've nothing more to buy,
I stroll along among the crowd
Without a reason why.

I watch a tired mother lead
Her child from some bright toy.
"He's played with it each day this week,
"I'd buy it for that boy
"If I had money," said the clerk.
Is this my answer, "why?"
And now I search for yearning eyes
And buy and buy and buy!
